Dr Stefano Bolognini "Elements of technique between Self and Not-Self"

Venue: The Jubilee Building Parnell
Time: Friday 10 August, 7-9 PM
Fee: $30, students $10
Wine & cheese will follow the lecture

Dr Bolognini will be presenting live streaming from Italy and the presentation will be offered via Zoom to those unable to attend in Auckland

The presentation will illustrate, from a theoretical and clinical perspective, some elements of technique based on the preconscious perception of the internal world of the other and on the specific use of inter-psychic modalities of analytic work. These specific technical elements, usually implicit and taken for granted, are worthy of further exploration:

1. Requests for clarification using different modalities, i.e. "that is?", "such as?", "how so?";
2. The repetition of what the patient has said, with the inevitable addition of the analyst's preconscious resonant nuances;
3. The extension of 'thoughtfulness', to facilitate inter-psychic syntonization;
4. The communication and validation of the analytic progress, that is noting that the patient has "succeeded in..." or has been "capable of...";
5. The use of the universalizing, impersonal pronoun (instead of a personal pronoun or name);
6. The targeted and intentional use of "we" in specific communicative passages, aimed at producing functional synergies and sustainable sharing.

The presentation will aim at promoting an awareness of the use of the described elements of technique in analytic treatment and in psychoanalytic psychotherapy.
